A STORY OF GENERAL JACKSON.

[From the Washington Republican.]

Many are the interesting scenes of Jackson's life which his biographer, Patton, has omitted and not brought to light. When a boy, said Judge J. C. Gould, in a recent address, I saw him scare and put to flight twenty thousand men. The occasion was this: Grey Hound, a Kentucky horse, had beaten Double Head, a Tennessee horse, and they were afterwards matched for $5,000 a side, to be run on the Clover Bottom course. My uncle, Josephus H. Coon, carried me on horseback behind him to see the race. He sat me on the cedar fence and told me to remain until he returned. There must have been twenty thousand persons present. I never witnessed such fierce betting between States. Money and negroes were put up. A large pound was filled with horses and negroes wagged on the result of the race. The time had now arrived for the competitors to appear on the track. I heard some loud talking and looked down the track, and saw for the first time General Jackson riding slowly on a gray horse, with long pistols held in each hand. I think they were as long as my arm, and had a mouth that a ground squirrel could enter. In his wake followed my uncle Coon, Stokely Duglesson, Patton Anderson, and several others as fierce as bull dogs. As General Jackson led the van and approached the judges' stand he was rapidly talking and gesticulating. As he came by me, he said he had irrefragable proof that this was to be a jockey race; that Grey Hound was in the wheat field the night before which disqualified him for the race, and his rider was to receive five hundred dollars to throw it off, and by the eternal God he would shoot the first man who brought his horse upon the track; the people's money should not be stolen from them in this manner. He talked incessantly, while the spirit riled from his mouth and the fire from his eye.

I have seen bears and wolves put at bay, but he was certainly the most ferocious looking animal I had ever seen. His appearance and manner struck terror to the hearts of twenty thousand people. If they felt as I did, every one expected to be slain. He announced to the parties if they wished some lead in their hides just bring their horses on the track, for by the eternal, he would kill the first man who offered to do so.

There was no response to this challenge, and after waiting some time, and they failing to appear, General Jackson said it was a great mistake in the opinion of some that he acted hastily and without consideration.

He would give the sounder a fair trial, and to that end he would constitute a court to investigate this matter, who would hear the proof and do justice to all parties. Thereupon he appointed a sheriff to keep order, and five judges to hear the case. Proclamation was made that the court was opened, and was ready to proceed to hear and defend themselves. Not appearing, General Jackson introduced the witnesses, proving the bribery of Grey Hound's rider, who was to receive five hundred dollars to throw off the race, having received two hundred and fifty dollars in advance, and that Grey Hound had been turned into the wheat field the night before. He again called on the parties to appear and counteract this proof and show their innocence. They failing to appear, Gen. Jackson told the Court that the proof was closed, and for them to render their judgment in the premises, which in a few moments was done in accordance with the facts proved.

I was still on the fence forming one line of the large pound containing the property wagged on the race. Each man was anxious to get back his property. General Jackson waved his hand and announced the decision, and said, "Now, gentlemen, go calmly, and in order, and each take his own property." When the word was given, the people came with a rush. It was more terrible than an army with banners. They came bulging against the fence, and in the struggle to get over they knocked it down for hundreds of yards. I was overturned and was nearly trampled to death. Each man got his property, and thus the fraudulent race was broken up by an exhibition of the most extraordinary courage. He did that day what it would have required two thousand armed men to have effected. All this was effected by the presence and action of one man, and without the drawing of one drop of blood.

CROSSED IN LOVE.—The life of Mary Ham, of Rye, N. H., who recently died at the age of ninety-two, was romantic and interesting, in the highest degree, for the nineteen years immediately preceding her death she lived the life of a hermit in a lonely hut, to which water and the broom were strangers during all her residence in it, and which was so filthy that an ordinary person could hardly bear to be in it for a moment. Here she ate and slept and got drunk, and was never glad to see company.

The only thing that in any measure relieved this howl of its dreariness was a package of well-worn love letters, and these explained her eccentric life. She was very much admired when twenty years old, and was very coquettish withal; but she finally fell in love with one Charles Waldron, and their love-letters were of the warmest sort. He tired of her fickleness, however, and dismissed her. This broke her heart; but to make it appear that she cared nothing for it, she engaged herself to a brilliant young scoundrel named John Ham, who had been expelled from Dartmouth College, and, being himself disappointed in love, married her in a fit of recklessness.

He died nineteen years ago, and ever after she lived her strange life. There have been many interesting stories told about her, one of which was that she had a large sum of money concealed in her hut, but a search after death disproved this. The letters, however, showed that her love affair had gone so far that her wedding outfit had been prepared and the day appointed, when the thunderbolt came. The circumstances of her last sickness led to the suspicion that she had been poisoned.

She was found with a bottle by her side, lying on a bed in the extremest agony; but rum and mental suffering probably account for all. The town authorities determined to "clean out" her den, a few days before her death, but they were obliged to tear her from it, screaming and struggling, and the purification required two days' work and a bonfire. The neighbors gave her every comfort possible in her closing hours, and a niece whom she had not seen for twenty years visited her, and the old woman recognized her.

DRUGS AND CHEMICALS.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is Regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Lippiness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. Its acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for FORTY YEARS, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.
